In the matter of peace, dear to the heart of every worthwhile man and woman, there are two distinct schools of thought. One is for the peace of the United States, with protection from the horrors of war for our own people. The other is for peace as a world-principle, even if it must be maintained at the sacrifice of the peace of the United States.

Our last war was fought to bring peace to the world at the sacrifice of American peace. It was a "war to end war" throughout the world. How sensible it was to believe that by going into a European war we could end war is now clear enough.

When the war was over the self-styled pacifists interested in peace as an abstraction rather than in peace for our own people, attempted to involve us in a world supergovernment which was authorized in the League of Nations covenant to wage war to preserve world peace. An attempt was made to pledge this nation to conscript its sons to fight wars we had no part in fomenting, on the theory that thereby we could keep the world's peace.

The founders of this nation were opposed to the involvement of this nation in European wars. They had seen the colonies become involved in a war between England and France, which had to be fought here as the French and Indian war. They knew that as colonies of a European power they were destined to be involved in every European war of the future. But for the achievement of American independence the Napoleonic wars would also have been fought on our soil.

Glad for their escape from such a fate, Washington and his great associates laid down the fundamental policy of avoiding involvement in European "collusions and collisions." They knew that the way to keep out of war was to keep out of Europe. The Monroe Doctrine was a great peace policy. It declared against the establishment in this hemisphere of the European system of balance of power, with its frequent clashes at arms. What it said to Europe in effect was: "You keep on your side of the street and we will keep on ours." It is just as sound and sensible a policy as when it was first proclaimed.

But the so-called peace movement in this country is chiefly in the hands of both theoretical dreamers and international pawn brokers who insist that this country must stake its peace, and its prosperity, on the peace and prosperity of the rest of the world. If Europe goes broke, we must go broke; if Europe runs amuck, we must run amuck. We are told that this is our duty, and that if we fail to proceed along this line we will break the heart of the world. We have already pretty well broken our pocketbooks trying to keep up with these world savers who seem to have forgotten the Biblical injunction that he who looks not out for his own household is worse than an infidel.

Why should it be so readily assumed that if the rest of the world insist on fighting, we must fight their battles?

Why is it insisted that Uncle Sam's beat as a policeman covers the whole earth? Why is it necessary for Americans to sacrifice the fruits of their labor and enterprise, exerted under favoring institutions and without the handicap of age-old rivalries, ambitions and hatreds, in order to protect other nations from the consequences of their own folly?

Yet this idea has been preached, and to some extent practiced, until through this sacrificial policy without helping the rest of the world at all, we are forced to wonder whether we are quite up to the job of saving ourselves, let alone the globe.

It should never be forgotten that this prating of peace by international financiers and international idealists does not mean the peace of America. It means a crusade for the peace of the world, armed with the sword as it is armed in the covenant of the League of Nations. It is as beautiful an ideal as the Children's Crusade of the Middle Ages which left the bones of youth bleaching on the road to Jerusalem, but never got to Jerusalem.

EXHIBIT OF WORK HELD AT SCHOOL FRIDAY, DEC. 19

A very interesting exhibit of Christmas work was held in the cafeteria of the Grammar school Friday afternoon.

Miss Rowena Farman was in charge and articles designed for Christmas use or as gifts, made by pupils of the upper grades of the school, were attractively grouped on display tables. There were Christmas cards, stationery, pictures, trays, candies, decorated towels and various other articles. On one table were articles from the manual training department, there was a "faculty table", too, where many lovely things were shown.

Miss Farman's cooking classes made and served dainty cup cakes and punch to the visitors and punch and cookies to the students who visited the display by classes.

A group from one of the grades sang Christmas carols throughout the afternoon.

Preceeding the exhibit a holiday program was held in the school auditorium at noon. The program consisted of selections by the school orchestra, songs by the girls' glee club and several dances by pupils of the dancing classes conducted by Miss Adele Roberts.

Postoffice Will Close Windows Saturday Afternoons

Commencing Jan. 2, 1932 the Campbell postoffice will close all windows at one o'clock on Saturday afternoons. This action is taken in conjunction with all other postoffices on the San Francisco peninsula. This will not conflict with the service of box-holders, nor the receipt and dispatch of mails, the present schedule remaining in force. All window service should be attended to before the closing hour.

The postoffice will be closed all day Christmas.

NEWEST PICTURES BEING SHOWN AT LOCAL THEATER

"Mother's Millions", with May Robson in the leading role is playing at the Campbell Theater Thursday and Friday. Frances Dade carries the ingenue lead with romantic interest being supplied by James Hall, Elinor Flynn and Lawrence. Friday afternoon there will be a free matinee for the kiddies, with a Christmas tree, presents and candy.

Every Friday night Joe will have his Kountry Store with lots of fun and prizes.

Saturday there will be shown at the theater Tim McCoy in "Shotgun Pass", a real western picture, with a real western star. It is a story of vengeance and romance in which range wars play an important part. This is a thrilling picture featuring horse stampedes, outlaws and romance. The management also has something new each Saturday night. This Saturday it is "Pay Nite".

Sunday and Monday the people of Campbell will be able to see one of the best pictures of the season. "The Last Flight", the First National feature starring Richard Barthlemess in the first motion picture dealing with the after-war psychology of flying men. It is a story of four buddies who are ex-aviators who have faced death a thousand times. They try to re-adjust themselves to peaceful conditions after the war. There will be a matinee on Sunday.

Next Tuesday and Wednesday will be shown "Seed" which was adapted for the screen from Charles G. Norris' popular novel. Just how great is the bond between a mother and her children is convincingly shown

San Francisco Wins Two Autos In Nationwide Slogan Contest

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., is now one of less than a dozen places out of a total of about 20,000 towns in the United States, that has produced two outstanding slogan writers as victors in the nationwide twenty word cigar band statement contest.

Victory of Harry F. Cousins, of 4148 18th St., San Francisco, Calif., in the Cremo Twenty Word Cigar Band Statement Contest, which carries a new automobile as prize, following a similar achievement by John W. Davy, of 546 9th Ave., indicates unusual ability on the part of the citizens of the town to express themselves briefly, accurately and forcefully.

Rules of the competition require contestants to submit a twenty word statement describing the quality and merits of the Certified Cremo Cigar, each word written on the back of a Cremo cigar band. Every day, Sundays excepted, until further notice, the American Cigar Company, 111 5th Avenue, New York City, awards a closed car to the winner, allowing a choice of the three leading popularly priced makes, Ford, Chevrolet or Plymouth.

At prevailing prices for these cars, each of the winners is remunerated at about $40 per word for his twenty words. This is about forty times as much as the world's most highly paid professional authors receive for their writings. With twenty word statements pouring in upon the judges from contestants in every part of the country, it is pointed out that it is a real distinction to write a slogan that will stand out as a winner.

Congregational Church Holds Xmas Party

The annual Christmas party of the Sunday school children of the Congregational church will be held tonight at 7 o'clock at the church. The parents of the children will be present for the program which is staged entirely by the younger groups of the Sunday school. A Christmas story will be told by Rev. J. H. Bennett. Santa Claus will make his annual visit to the church tonight.

FAREWELL PARTY IS HELD BY GUILD FOR MRS. GAISER

The ladies of the Congregational Guild tendered one of their members, Mrs. C. J. Gaiser, a farewell party on Thursday at the home of Mrs. Horace Person.

The gathering was a farewell for Mrs. Gaiser who is moving to Berkeley this week where her family will make their home. Mr. Gaiser has been at the San Francisco Presidio for some time, and as he has now disposed of their home on Rincon avenue, they will move to the university city. Their son, Conrad, will remain here to complete his year at State Teachers College.

An informal program was enjoyed, Mrs. T. A. Cutting announcing the numbers. Little Elaine Jeffers played a piano solo, "A Happy Farmer"; Mrs. John Kiesaman gave two humorous readings, "Learning to Skate" and "An Interrupted Reverie", and Mrs. W. F. Grattin sang two numbers, "By the Bend of the River" and "The Cunnin' Little Thing".

A Christmas tree was hung with many little parcels which Mrs. Gaiser was directed to open after the reading of a little rhyme which Mrs. L. F. Shaw had written about "The Handkerchief Tree". The packages contained handkerchiefs from the Guild members.

Dainty refreshments were served and then the ladies said regretful farewells to their co-worker.

MRS. LAUGHLIN TO LECTURE HERE ON FRIDAY, JANUARY 8

Mrs. Dora Laughlin of San Jose, traveller, lecturer and arranger of travel tours will give an illustrated talk on "Islands of the South Seas" Friday evening, January 8, at 8 o'clock, in the Library Hall.

Mrs. Laughlin has visited these islands and has many interesting exhibits and lantern slides with which to accompany her lecture and add to its interest.

This entertainment is being sponsored jointly by the Country Women's club and the Pundita Circle for the benefit of the County Federation scholarship fund. Each club in the county Federation is helping to raise a fund that is loaned to needy students in our county colleges who must be residents of the county. Several students are already being aided with the funds now at hand.

Tickets will be on sale at a very small price and the clubs hope that many will avail themselves of the opportunity to hear this lecture and at the same time be helping some deserving young person complete an education.

Mrs. Laughlin donates her services for this cause.

Representative McFadden's Violent Attack on President Hoover Stirs House—Chicago Wins the Republican National Convention.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

TWO Republican members of congress from Pennsylvania—Representative Louis McFadden and Senator David A. Reed—stirred up the national legislature by violent attacks on the policy of President Hoover and the administration in relation to the moratorium on intergovernmental debts and the suggested revival of the refunding commission with the possibility of cancellation of war debts. McFadden, former chairman of the house banking and currency committee, was especially bitter in his hour-long speech, asserting that Mr. Hoover had "sold out" the United States to "the German international bankers" whom he named as Kuhn, Loeb & Co., the Seligmans, Paul Warburg and "their satellites." He said the administration's course in working for acceptance of the moratorium was like "the ways of an oriental potentate drunk with power." He declared the President's unofficial poll of congress last June was "a crude attempt to usurp legislative power."

L. McFadden

Representative John J. O'Connor of New York, a Tammany Democrat, jumped to his feet shouting to Republicans:

"It's my President as well as yours he's talking about, and if none of you will defend him from charges which are grounds for impeachment, I'm going to."

But Burnett M. Chiperfield of Illinois, Republican, was already up and his reply was vigorous and adequate. He said:

"If the gentleman (McFadden) means what he says and if the gentleman is sincere, let him and his associates prepare articles of impeachment against the President of the United States, and let those articles of impeachment be tried, and then the proof may be known, and let the guilt and infamy and horror fall where it may. The President of the United States would ask for such action, knowing that the truth and a fair inquiry would vindicate him. . . .

"Ladies and gentlemen, if there is one particle of integrity in the statement the gentleman has made, let the gentleman produce proof of the charges. Let him show that we have a President who is unworthy of occupying that high office or let him go from this chamber as a foul traducer of the character of an honest man."

SENATOR REED, who has often been regarded as the spokesman for Secretary Mellon, denounced what he called the propaganda of the international bankers to force cancellation for their own selfish interests, and he declared flatly that he was opposed to the revival of the war debt commission as proposed by the President.

"We have cancelled," he said, "all we are going to cancel; it is within the capacity of most of the nations of Europe to pay us the amounts they owe us, and as long as that fact stares us in the face it is sheer imbecility for us to be any more generous than we have been in the past."

Senators McKeller of Tennessee and Johnson of California followed in much the same vein and both declared that they would not vote even for the one year moratorium. The latter was before the house ways and means committee and Undersecretary Mills and Secretary of State Stimson both appeared before that body to urge ratification.

SPEAKER GARNER and Senator Robinson announced that the Democratic joint policy committee had determined that the Hoover moratorium was not a subject matter for party consideration and should be left open to the personal views of the Democratic members. The committee also decided that every possible effort would be made to reduce government expenditures, but did not reach an agreement on details with respect to the tariff or tax revision, leaving these with other matters for future consideration.

Senator Moses

The first bill to reach actual committee discussion in the senate was one introduced by Senator Hale, to authorize building the navy up of the London treaty limits.

Organization of the senate was accomplished by the election of committee chairmen, but the deadlock over the choice of a president pro tempore was not broken. The progressives opposing the re-election of Senator George Moses of New Hampshire would not give in, and Moses continued to preside. One day the recalcitrants delivered their entire vote to Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, a regular who was a leader of the so-called "young guard" last session. But both Vandenberg and the young guard spurned this overture and continued to vote for Moses.

CHICAGO captured the Republican national convention of 1932, the administration's alleged opposition to that city not manifesting itself. The national committee, presided over by Chairman Fess, listened to earnest arguments in favor of Chicago and Atlantic City, and on the first ballot gave 86 votes to the former and 14 to the latter. The choice was then made unanimous. Cleveland, Detroit, Philadelphia and St. Louis withdrew their bids before the balloting began, none of them having been able to raise the money for the convention expense. The committee decided that the convention should be called for June 14.

Chicago guaranteed up to $150,000 to pay for the expenses of the G. O. P. gathering, and her hotels have agreed to accommodate 3,500 delegates, alternates and newspaper men at rates of from $1.50 to $4 a day. The convention will be held in the new stadium, which can seat about 30,000 and which has ample accommodations for committees, etc. It has a cantilever roof without obstructing pillars, a modern ventilating and refrigerating system, excellent acoustics and a fine pipe organ. The only drawback is the fact that the stadium is located on the West side, several miles from the hotels that will house the visitors.

RELIEF for the nation's jobless is still foremost in the mind of Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York. Last week he introduced in the senate a resolution designed to set in motion the machinery created by the federal employment stabilization act which was passed last session at his instance. This would mean a start on a two billion-dollar federal public works program that would give employment to thousands of men.

Sen. Wagner

In the preamble to his resolution, Senator Wagner set forth facts and figures showing the gravity of the depression. After citing the number of unemployed, the many bank failures and the falling off in production, he showed that the volume of construction for the third quarter of 1931 was $858,900,000, or 53 per cent less than for the third quarter of 1928; that the volume of building contracts awarded declined $2,447,300,000 in the first nine months of 1931 below the similar period in 1928; and that the volume of construction of public works and public utilities has fallen from $1,039,043,000 in the first nine months of 1928 to $982,700,000; that the wholesale prices of building materials declined from an index of 82.9 in January to 74.9 in September, that money spent for relief in the larger American cities was in September, 1931, 142 per cent greater than in September, 1930, and in October, 1931, 18 per cent greater than in October, 1930.

OVER in Basel, Switzerland, the Young plan advisory committee, of which Alfredo Beneduce of Italy, is chairman, was said to have abandoned any intention of making strong recommendations for the complete abolition of reparations payments by Germany, although this was strongly urged by Colijn, neutral Dutch member, and favored by others. The committee's mind was probably changed by the firm stand taken by Walter W. Stewart, United States member, against the scaling down of war debts, but Europe still hopes the American attitude will be more lenient in a few months. The advisory committee will merely report to the various governments the facts uncovered concerning Germany's capacity to pay, and action will be put up to the final reparations conference that probably will be held late in January.

A. Beneduce

A technical subcommittee submitted a written report to Chairman Beneduce on German holdings abroad and the holdings of foreigners in Germany with a view to establishing the net debt of the reich. The figures were held in secrecy.

It was understood this subcommittee suggested it was impossible to uncover all German investments abroad, and intimated that they were much larger than the 9,700,000,000 reichsmarks listed in the Wiggin report as of December 31, 1930.

UNDER pressure, Chiang Kai-shek finally has resigned as president of China, and with him Minister of Finance Soong and Foreign Minister Wellington Koo also have stepped down. The result, it is predicted in the orient, will be a united China under a coalition government, with the Canton faction holding the upper hand. The group that overthrew Chiang includes Dr. Sun Fo, son of the late Dr. Sun Yat-sen; C. C. Wu, former minister to the United States, and Eugene Chen, formerly foreign minister. For the present Lin Sen, a veteran member of the Nationalist party, is at the head of the government.

Chiang Kai-shek

According to these leaders, the new government will no longer rely so much on the League of Nations and will assume a much more vigorous policy toward Japan in the Manchurian dispute. This announcement may serve to quiet the Chinese students, who in their effort to bring on actual war with Japan have continued their riotous demonstrations in Nanking and elsewhere.

Chiang Kai-shek explained his resignation in the following statement:

"I have tried to fulfill my obligations ever since I was made chairman of the National government in 1928. My comrades at Canton said they would come to Nanking only on condition that I resign. This means that I must retire before peace and unity are restored."

MUKDEN dispatches indicate that Manchuria will soon become autonomous, with Gen. Tsang Shih-yi as its first ruler. The general has just been installed as governor of Fengtien province, of which Mukden is the capital. He replaced Yuan Chin-Kai, who was installed after the Japanese captured the city in September and was never considered more than a temporary figurehead. General Tsang was made a prisoner by the Japanese at that time, and apparently he has at last been won over by them.

JAPAN'S new premier, Tsuyoshi Inukai, in his first interview declared Japan does not covet an inch of ground in Manchuria but insisted that Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang must withdraw his army from the Chinchow region. He said the Japanese demanded only their treaty rights, with guarantees of safety for their nationals in China.

Premier Inukai

In response to a question regarding disarmament, the premier said, "I favor it. One of the most absurd ideas in the world is the insistence upon maintaining large armies and navies."

He concluded the interview with the hope that the United States would soon get over its streak of thrift and "buy more silk—Japan needs the money."

The premier has appointed as foreign minister Kenkichi Yoshizawa, ambassador to Paris and Japan's representative at the meetings of the League of Nations council. He has been called home to Tokyo. The Inukai government, it is expected, will adopt most of the budget of former Finance Minister Inouye, which action would free the Minseito party from the necessity of voting against the new cabinet and probably would avert a general election. The retrenchment plans, however, will be abandoned.

REPORTS of the royal mix-up in Rumania continue contradictory and confusing. The latest is that King Carol and Prince Nicholas have made up, that the latter has agreed to give up his wife, Jana Deletj, legally but only legally, and that he will therefore retain his royal titles and prerogatives and his military commands. So Nicholas and Jana will be merely companions, as were—and are—Carol and Magda Lupescu.

ILLINOIS Republicans are anxiously waiting to learn whether United States District Judge James H. Wilkerson will run for governor of that state. So far he is silent. Recently Judge Wilkerson called on President Hoover and it is said the President urged him to go after the governorship, predicting his election. The jurist, it is reported, would prefer to remain on the bench and to accept his stated promotion to the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals.

Womans' Club Has Christmas Party Monday

A very lovely Christmas party was enjoyed by members and guests of the Country Woman's club Monday afternoon.

The hall was a real Christmas bower with its lighted tree and the quantities of red berries and greenery arranged around the room. Lighted red tapers on tables and mantel, and a glowing fire in the fireplace, was a setting to instill the real holiday spirit.

All about under the tree were heaped packages in bright Christmas wrappings, containing food and toys brought by the members to make Christmas more real in several homes.

Mrs. Ralph Hyde, as chairman of the committee for the day, named the other members of her group as Mrs. W. C. Bohnett, Mrs. Elizabeth Duncan and Mrs. A. W. Johnson.

The first number on the program was a carol "Angels From the Realms of Glory," sung by a quartet composed of Mesdames W. F. Grattin, Freeman Howes, J. D. Blaine and W. C. Bohnett, who also led the group in singing "Silent Night". The concluding number was similar to the first, the quartet singing "The First Noel" and leading "Hark The Herald Angels Sing". Mrs. F. V. Perrott acted as accompanist.

A group of children dances in costume were an enjoyable feature of the program. Catherine Perrott presented a Dutch Dance with her mother at the piano; Geraldine Lloyd and Marilyn Anderson gave the Dance of the Firefly, and Geraldine then gave a solo Japanese dance with Mrs. Roberts, accompanist. Emily and Lois Bohnett did two numbers, a Polish dance and a tap dance with Mrs. Emily Gard as accompanist. Margaret Tanner read a Christmas story in rhyme and the Misses Muriel Crothers and Annette Merrill sang two duets, "There's A Song in the Air" and "The Rosary".

As the club study so far this year has been about Canada, it seemed appropriate to hear about the observance of Christmas in that country. Mrs. W. I. Merrill, who grew up in New Brunswick, described the preparations made for the holiday time, the Christmas dinner, and the glorious winter sports such as skating, coasting, skiing, curling, hockey and sleighing.

The party concluded with the serving of dainty refreshments.

The Campbell Kiwanis club was host to 40 children at the annual dinner today. D. H. Cramer, I. R. Abbott and James Dempsey had charge of the program and Rev W. H. Boyd of San Jose was the speaker.

Alvin, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. York, received a broken arm while playing Thursday.

OAKLAND RACES SCHEDULED FOR SUNDAY, DEC. 27

OAKLAND, Dec 21—Cliff Wilson of Bakersfield, veteran Pacific Coast racing driver, invaded the Northwest last summer and in his first race on the Vancouver, B. C., speedway lost control of his car and smashed through the underpinning of the grandstand. Cliff was only recently released from the hospital and he immediately began rebuilding his car for California meets.

Linn Mathewson, general manager of the Oakland Speedway Association, received a telegram from the Bakersfield pilot from Yakima, Washington, informing him that he was en route to Oakland and wanted to enter the meet scheduled for next Sunday afternoon.

"Of course since our racing schedule of the twenty-seventh is the postponed meet of the thirteenth, rules of the A. A. A. Contest Board state that post entries are permitted only after the drivers already entered have given their consent," declared Manager Mathewson in commenting on Wilson's telegram. "However, I do not believe that any of the drivers will refuse to let Cliff compete."

It was also revealed by officials of the Oakland Speedway Association that Fred Frame, who finished second to Lou Schneider in the last 500-mile Indianapolis classic, may bring his two-seater Duesenburg Special to Oakland for the twenty-seventh. If Frame does compete the Oakland race will have the first three men to finish the Memorial Day Hoosier race Frame in its field. Like Wilson, Frame must have the okey of the other entrants before he can drive.

Mathewson is of the opinion, though, that this will be merely a formality.

Kiwanis Clothes Depot Open Saturday Afternoon

The clothes depot sponsored by the local Kiwanis club and located at the I. O. O. F. hall is open every Saturday afternoon from 1 to 5 o'clock. Clothing for children is in demand according to Guy Farley, head of the Kiwanis committee. The clothing turned in at the depot is distributed to the needy of the community. The depot is working out very well under central headquarters rather than many separate depots as of years previous.

Mrs. W. I. Merrill, head of the community relief committee, has charge of the distribution with Mrs. Christobe Girrard, school nurse, and Mrs. Lillian Rae, of the high school faculty, assisting.

Those having any clothing to turn in for community relief should arrange to bring them down or send them to the hall Saturday afternoon.
